TEACHING KIDS TO MASTER THE ART OF DRAMA

ROBYN POWELL

Robyn attended the National Institute of Dramatic Art, where her classmates included Mel Gibson and Judy Davis. They became stars while she dropped out! Pursuing another path she went on to become the first woman ever employed as a technical operator at a television station. In the years since then, she has worked as a copy-writer, radio and television producer, and voice-over artist. But her passion is teaching drama to kids. She aims to help children build confidence, while having fun with movement and the spoken word, as well as coming to terms with the discipline required to master the art of drama. You will work hard in her classes but you will have heaps of fun at the same time. By the end of the year you will have achieved things you never thought possible!
